

OpenTheo

The Hungry Theologian

September 1, 2021

Alastair Roberts

A few days ago, I interviewed Ralph Roberts of The Hungry Theologian YouTube channel (https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCQNK_Y9aRWuRerQXSzQz2QA/). Check out his channel (and listen to the interview here: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rf8eNOq7q-8&ab_channel=AlastairRoberts).

Transcript

This is Hungry Theologian, helping you taste and see that the Lord is good. You should get a good crust in about 45 seconds on each side. Finish the steaks with some Maldon's flaky salt, then slice and enjoy this beautiful piece of meat.

Cooking is one of the ways that we literally get our hands on reality. Then top with the fresh strawberries and the strawberry sauce, and garnish with a few fresh mint leaves. One of my favorite scenes in the Gospels is when the resurrected Jesus grills fish for his disciples.

So today, we're making salmon. For me, this salmon is perfectly done, but you can go a little longer if you don't like it as rare. Cooking and eating are ways that we inhabit God's creation with all five of our senses.

The end result is the best broccoli I've had. It's caramelized and sweet, while still maintaining a nice crunch. Top it with the minister to his followers and communicate the depths of his love.

This sandwich obviously looks great, but how did we do on crispiness? Wow, that even sat out while I took pictures. Good food is a reminder that there's more to life than being useful. Good food is an opportunity to delight in the fact that God made the world to be delicious.