

OpenTheo

Ask Me Your Questions!

May 13, 2018

Alastair Roberts

If you have any burning biblical or theological questions that you would like for me to answer, leave them in the comments here, or on one of the following sites:

<https://alastairadversaria.com/>

<https://curiouscat.me/zugzwanged>

Transcript

One of the benefits of YouTube overwriting a blog post is that I can produce a video like this in a fraction of the time that it would take me to produce a blog post. Now, this takes more time for you if you're watching, if you're following. I highly recommend that you go to the bottom right hand corner, click on settings, and use the speed setting to listen to my video considerably faster than you would if you were having to watch it all the way through at regular speed.

That's the way I usually watch videos if someone's speaking. What I am hoping to do, since I'm very busy at the moment, don't have time to write blog posts, but I do have time to do videos, is to field questions. If you have any questions about biblical theology, about any interpretations of scripture, and these sorts of issues, send them my way and I'll see about answering them in a forthcoming video or maybe a number of videos.

You can leave the comments, questions in the comments below this, in the comments of other videos, or perhaps on my Curious Cat account, or even on my blog. Feel free to email me as well if you have my address and I hope to answer as many of these questions as I can in forthcoming videos. God bless.